BIG CONTEST ON ATTORNEYSHIP

Main Fight in Republican Convention Monday to be Three

FRIENDS OF WILLEY ACTIVE

No Opposition to Mrs. Witcher, Free Jaques, Amos Gabbott or Joseph Sharp-Legislative Candidates.

With the county convention but two days away, candidates for nomination on the Republican ticket are very ac tive. While several interesting contests are scheduled to take place or the floor of the convention, there will be none perhaps more strenuously fought out than that for the nomination of county attorney. At the present writing the attorneyship seems to have narrowed down to a three-cornered contest, with Job Lyon, present incumbent, working for a renomination: 1. E. Willey, nominated a year ago for the city attorneyship, being urged by his friends to make the race, and Moses C. Davis, a well known local attorney, making up the third corner of the tri-

Nephi Jenson and James Ingebretsen were also named among the aspirants for the nomination, but it is believed that both have withdrawn from active candidacy. Jenson was conducting an independent campaign for his own nomination. Davis has but recently announced himself in the race, and he appears to have a pretty heavy backing. It is said the friends of the Re publican organ are working "tooth and toenail" against Lyon, on account of the suit he planted against the paper to recover something like $6,000 alleged to have been overcharged the county for printing delinquent tax lists, and friends of Davis are claiming gains as a result of the disaffection.

Supporters or Willey, however, are not ide. They claim that Willey, in addition to the fact that he possesses ample ability to fill the position, is enample ability to fill the position, is entitled to the consideration of the party on the ground that when he had been nominated for city attorney on the Republican city ticket he witndrew in the interest of harmony when the party decided to unite on a fusion ticket.
He served the people of Davis as county attorney served years are and his the served the below of Davis as country attorney several years ago, and his friends say that he has a record which cannot be surpassed. They do not propose to lay down and will carry the campaign for Willey up to the last ditch.

Other contests will occur on the treasurership, and auditorship. John A. Groesbeck, who is running for a third term in the treasurer's office, will be opposed by Fred C. Bassett and Stephen H. Stanford. Frank Heginbotham, who wants to be auditor for the third time, will be opposed by Roscoe Vigus, formerly a clerk in the auditor's office.

J. D. Murdock and Walter J. Burton are candidates for renomination

J. D. Murdock and Walter J. Burton are candidates for renomination as county commissioners from the city and O. W. Carlson of Mill Creek is out for the county nomination, as are also W. W. Wilson of Sandy and James Nielsen of Big Cottonwood.

No opposition has developed to the candidacy of Mrs. Witcher for county clerk; Amos Gabbot for county assessor; Fred Jacques for county recorder, or Joseph Sharp for county corder, or Joseph Sharp for county sheriff. W. N. Williams, Benner X. Smith

W. N. Williams, Benner X. Smith and Sam C. Park are apparently the only candidates in the race for the senatorship, but candidates for representative are more numerous. Among those avowedly out for the lower house are the following: Harry B. Cole, Claude Y. Russell, John James, W. H. Toblas, T. A. Eckman, T. L. Holman of Bingham, John Currie, Daniel Mc-Rae, Claude T. Barnes, John Page, Brigham Clegg, H. L. Nelson, E. J. Eardley, Joel Nibley, L. Dahlquist, C. C. Crapo, H. A. McMillan, and Carl Hardy.

Hardy.

The delegates from the city will hold acucuses tonight to determine upon a line of action to pursue in the convention, with the prospect that whatever kind of a "slate" is fixed up there will be some spirited opposition to the line-up' in the convention.

"Sister Vilate Murray Kimball, first wife of Heber C, Kimball, was one of the noble women of the earth. She was dearly loved by his wives and children as well as by all who intimately knew her. Too little has been said of her exemplary life. She was a ministering angel to those in distress, ever ready to aid those less fortunate in the comforts of life. She never seemed so happy as when seeking to make others happy. Every year it was her custom to invite all the family to her table and insist that it was her privilege to wait upon and make them happy and comfortable. A telegram was received today by Asst. Gen. Manager Chandler from Gen. Otis, en route to this city from El Paso. The text of Gen. Otis' telegram was not made public but Mr. Chandler said that Gen. Otis' was not at the country and the country was over the destruction of all perturbed over the destruction of his newspaper, but on the contrary stated in positive terms that the fight against labor unions would be continued.

The Times issued an extra from its press in the auxiliary office at College and San Fernando streets during the early morning hours, giving the details of the explosion and fire.

PREST. JAMES McLYNCH ISSUES STATEMENT

Indianapolis, Oct. 1.—President James M. Lynch of the International Typo-graphical union today made the fol-lowing statement relative to the explosion which wrecked the plant of the Los years been a bitter, unrelenting and un-reasoning enemy of trade unionism and it is characteristic of The Times management that, immediately after the explosion which wrecked its plant and without awaiting any investigation as to the cause of the catastrophe, it should charge the disaster to the trade unions, as was done by The Times' as-sistant general manager. The Typo-graphical union resents and refutes this charge. We have defended our-selves against the attacks made by The selves against the attacks made by The Times as best we could, but we have always fought fair.

"The International Typographical union is not a lawbreaking, dynamiting institution; its record of more than 60 years' existence is an honorable one and entirely free from resort to violence of any kind. It has won its cause and reached its present position of strength and influence solely through the justice of its contentions and the lawful and orderly manner in which its aims have been prosecuted and made aims have been prosecuted and made effective,

"No one regrets The Times catastro phe more than I do, and especially the loss of life following the explosion. On the other hand, we are determined to protect ourselves against the opportu-nity that will be embraced by Gen. Otls and his subordinates to attempt to fasten the explosion on the trades unions. Today I caused to be sent to our representatives in Los Angeles the following telegram:

"In conjunction with the president

"In conjunction with the president and board of trustees of No. 174, will take such measures as may appear necessary to protect the International Typographical union and local union from any charge of complicity with the alleged dynamiting of The Times office. Press reports convince us the explosion was caused by faulty gas mains and due entirely to the unsanitary condition of The Times plant."

HARRY CRANE WORKED HERE. Was Employed for a Year on a Salt

Lake Dally Newspaper.

Harry Crane, who was killed in the explosion and fire in The Times building last night, was employed for more than a year on the old Salt Lake Herald as a reporter and copy reader. He "covered" the railroad beat for several months and for a short time was on special assignments.

Crane was 37 years old and was married. He had one child. Crane came to Salt Lake from Bolse in 1908 and left Salt Lake about a year ago. He went to Los Angeles where he secured employment as assistant telegraph editor on The Times.

For twelve years Crane had been engaged in the newspaper business, and worked on several of the big dailles in the country. He has relatives in St. Louis and Chicago. Crane was considered. Angeles Times:

Twenty-Nine Years of Opposition to Unions

Times.)

The Los Angeles Times was founded by General Harrison Gray Otis 29 years ago and now it is considered one of the strongest and most influential newspapers in the west. It has a Sunday circulation of 80,500 copies and a daily circulation of 50,000, being the most widely read newspaper in South-ern California. The Times-Mirror Publishing plant was the most com-plete in the west, costing upwards of $800,000. Besides publishing the Los Angeles Times, the company carried on one of the largest job printing estab-lishments in Los Angeles.

In the beginning General Otis, now a multi-millionaire, saw some strenuous times with his two-page paper which he got out practically himself on a flat bed press with the as-sistance of a printer and an appren-tice. For a long time suspen-sion of publication was expected any day and only the grit and determinaalive. While the paper was being nursed along, Gen. Otis slept in his office and was reduced to the plainest kind of living. Under his business ability, however, the paper began to see the light of day and it was in-creased to a four-page publication.

SMALL BEGINNING.

He established his plant, which was very meager, at Broadway and First street, where it was destroyed last night. In a short time, The Times outgrew the building, which was one story in height, and plans were made for a larger building and better plant. It was just at this time that the Typo-It was just at this time that the Typo-It was just at this time that the Typo-graphical union organized in Los An-geles and aimed to unionize The Times office with an increase in wages. Gen-eral Otis's paper was still hanging on the ragged edge and he refused to con-sent to the demands of the union and declared that he would establish a non-union shop.

With the struggle against unionism, With the struggle against unionism, The Times almost went out of existence again. For months General Otis practically got out the paper alone and fought the union, which was attempting to throttle him, through its columns. The Times began to thrive on its fight against the unions and the paper gained a prestige among the people which increased its circulation and ple which increased its circulation and timulated advertising.

FIGHT FOR FREE HARBOR.

In its early life, the signal victory of The Times was the fight that the news-paper made for a free harbor at San Pedro. General Otls saw the advan-Pedro. General Otts saw the advan-tage of a great free harbor there and when it was wrested from the hands of railroads and established, the people of Los Angeles presented The Times Publishing company with the corner stone in the gray granite building which was destroyed by dynamite and fire last night, on which was an in-sertition commemorating the victory scription commemorating the victory which The Times had gained for South which The Times had gained for South-ern California. General Otis spent two years and considerable money in the fight for a free harbor. During this time he made several trips to Wash-ington, D. C., in the interest of the free harbor at his own expense.

HIS FIGHT WITH LABOR.

As the newspaper grew, Gen. Otts turned more attention to the labor question. He sent a member of his reportorial stan to Europe to investigate the labor conditions of England, as they were cal Germany and other countries. Statis- the local room.

The unions have spent thousands of dollars to unionize his plant but have never been successful. LINOTYPE SCHOOL. About 10 years ago, Gen. Otis established a linotype school. There he teaches young men the trade under an apprenticeship. After the first six months, the apprentices receive a small wage which is gradually increased. When they have learned the profession they are taken into the newspaper plant or job office. Gen. Oils ha spent thousands of dollars for equipment of this school. He does not put any restrictions on the apprentices but few of them ever join the union after they have been taught the profession in his school. The Times pays its compositors and machinists as high a wage scale as the union shops and many months, the apprentices receive a small union men who have been sent into the shop as delegates by the union in an effort to organize it or agitate a strike are still working there. RELICS OF YEARS.

RELICS OF YEARS.

The Times building is a three-story structure of granite and faces on Broadway and First street. Adjoining the building in the rear on Broadway is a seven-story brick and stone addition which contains the job and composing rooms, the art and engraving departments and the storage rooms. The business office and circulation department occupy the main floor of the granite building. In the business office is a long counter which is made from pieces of wood gathered from all parts of the world and notable buildings, and old wooden battleships and relics of former days. Gen. In the local rooms on the third floor, there are many relics, curios and the ghosts of things. It has a reputation next to the New York Sun office for being the dinglest local room in the newspaper offices of the country. These relics and curios have been gathered by the staff members for years and hung upon the walls and from the ceilings. For instance, there is an old pair of wooden horses' hoofs heavily shod, which led the charge behind the scenes at the first theater in Los Angeles, hanging on the wall. In the corner on the wall there are the signatures of the notable men of the country who dropped into the office at sometime or other. Homer Davenport has a free hand sketch on the wall. The "mas-

Gen. Otts also maintained a library and reading room on the third floor for his employes. It was established several yetrs ago and contained several thousand volumes of fiction and reference books. Employes were given the same privileges as at the Packard free library, with almost the same restrictions imposed. The reference library there was one of the most complete in the country for newspaper work.

The "morgue" was also very extensive and complete. Two men were kept busy keeping it up to date. It occupied quarters on the third floor. The editorial rooms were also on the same floor with the local room. Managing Editor Harry Andrews and City Editor John Von Bion occupied "stalls," as they were called, in one corner of the local room.

ENJOYED HIS MEAL AND LEFT. But His Two Companions Land in City Juil.

Thomas Green and Nathaniel Fenton are under arrest at police headquarters charged with beating a Commercial stret restauranteur out of a meal. They deny the charge.

Green and his companion say they met a third man this morning who asked them to come and have a bite. They were willing. When the meal was eaten the obliging Mr. Bountiful ex cused himself until he went out to "cash a check." They might have been wait-ing yet, had not a man in a new blue ing yet, had not a man in a new blue winter uniform who works for Chief of Police Sam Barlow, come into the restaurant and in a very unclublike manner demanded that they pay for the meals. They were willing, but had neglected to bring their check book along so they have to tell their story to Judge Whitaker in police court.
